Roger emptied his homer into the field seats in the seventh, scoring Shawkey ahead of him. So while the Yanks ran up twelve hits against four, they needed both home runs to win, as the two circuit smashes both came with two out and were directly responsible for five of the six local runs.

Fifteen for Shawkey.

While the Yanks were mauling the everlasting padding out of Williams, Shawkey spun out one of his usual games, running his total up to fifteen victories for the year against ten defeats. Shawkey has won four more games than Hick Cullop, although Bob has dropped ten contests to Nick's sole defeat.

from when the Cultop, situation of four work on, Shawkey had the Mackmen in a highly precarious condition. He had them stopped with one hit through the fifth, but when Pipp set his home run adrift and still another tally was added an inning or so later on, the exmackman decided to let his old pals emerge from the deadly trance into which his fast ball had thrown them. Aragon's error and a double by Amos Strunk scored the first Mackian tally, while Amos fired another double in the ninth, driving Jimmy Walsh across.

Two of the leading fielding features of the day fell to the lot of Nap Lajoie, the eminent Frenchman who is now induging in his twentieth year. Larry is the game's veteran, having served two months longer than Honus Wagner, the Pittsburgh Ruin. He is no longer a pinkfaced recruit, but he is still the most graceful infielder in the game. Twice yesterday he scooped up hard smashes without the semblance of effort, merely dipping up the ball in the liquid, careless fashion that has helped to make him famous.

No wonder he has lasted twenty years, for the wear and tear upon his system has been far less than it would have been upon the over-anxious, nervous type fighting with both hands for unless.

Dizzy Day for Arragon.

Cincinnati, Aug. 15.—The National Baseball Commission to-day reversed itself after rehearing the case of the Fort Wayne, Indiana, club, of the Central League, against the National Association.

In a former finding the commission reversed a ruling of the national board, which held that on the termination of the Fort Wayne club's membership in the Central League in the latter part to flast January, because of its failure to post the 1916 guarantee and the subsequent waiver by that league of its reversionary rights to their services, the players of that club became free agents and therefore were not subject to sale.

The Yanks may not win the pennant, but they can at least boast the two the two pensants and the standard fence, a three-bagger, and in the third Wheat got a blow of like distance.

Following these two wallops, the fans sat and gnashed their teeth while the reduce their credit, while the next two in sight are Felsch and Graney, with five each.

In the National League, Williams, of the Cubs, leads the home run count with the players of that club became free agents and therefore were not subject to sale.

To-day's decision says that at that gers of his corral. time the commission was under the impression that the Central League had failed to afford proper protection to the interests of the owners of the ffteen victories against ten defeats. Fort Wayne club in declaring its franchise forfeited while the president of the first form out has been beyond reproach.

Fort Wayne club in declaring its franchise forfeited while the president of the club, Mr. Klitzke, was incapacitated through illness.

It is now shown conclusively, the finding adds, that instead of taking advantage of this condition Mr. Klitzke and his associates received ample time to protect their investments and that the responsibility for the loss of their franchise wholly devolved upon them.
